Expected learning outcomes
Knowledge and understanding on:	The course aims to acquire the legal rules relating to the phenomenon of "tourism" through the study of internal, community and international legislation that regulates tourism. The course aims to guide students to understand the fundamental concepts and institutions of tourism legislation, offering an overall legal framework that also takes into account the evolution of the system. The course is divided into three parts: the first will focus on the basic institutions of public law (which are a necessary prerequisite for deepening the issues of the sector) and the analysis of the main regulatory sources on the subject; the second the study of the public organization in the field of tourism and the third will aim to analyze the subjects operating in the tourism sector.
Applying knowledge and understanding on:	The course aims to offer future professionals in the tourism sector an exhaustive knowledge of the rules, organization and "dynamics of tourism. At the end of the course the student must be able, from a conceptual point of view, to analyze and understand the institutions and the fundamental problems of the subject (with particular regard to the most recent reforms). From the application point of view of "know-how", teaching provides the tools to understand, in its many aspects, the phenomena related to tourism to train qualified professionals in the most important areas of the sector, such as: travel agencies and tour operators; hotels and other accommodation facilities; regional and national tourism offices; mediation figures (guides, local interpreters, creators of tourism resources); tourism promotion companies, traditional or multimedia tourism publishing; press offices, museums, event organization, and more..
Soft skills	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Autonomy of judgment The study of the Tourism Legislation allows to acquire ample autonomy in the identification of the rules and, consequently, of the most appropriate legal instruments for the resolution of the problems inherent to the different operational realities of the tourism sector.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Communication skills In order to develop the ability to transfer the acquired knowledge to others, using correct technical-legal terminology, the teaching unfolds, in addition to traditional lessons, in exercises and seminars in which in-depth material is provided (normative texts, cases jurisprudential, provisions of the A.G.C.M. and more) and the active participation of students in the debate is stimulated. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ability to learn independently At the end of the course, by passing the final exam, the student will have acquired all the basic notions of the subject and will also be able to orient themselves in the research of the legislation, jurisprudence and doctrine necessary to resolve legal problems related to the tourism sector.
